in Los Angeles, January 24 & 25 2018

MOLLY NOVER-BAKER JOINS THE TEAM AS BEAUTY DIRECTOR

PR Newswire, Los Angeles, CA (January 24, 2018): Pour Moi, the world's first climate centric skincare line, has tapped into the world of beauty editors to find its Beauty Director: Molly Nover-Baker. In addition to representing the brand as an expert, one of Nover-Baker's main roles is creating content for Pour Moi's new resident Beauty Forecast blog: a site dedicated to the relationship between climate and skincare. Until now, the connection between the two has been underreported—and it takes someone of Nover-Baker's caliber to adequately discuss it.

"Women are not only becoming more aware of our environment, but how their skin behaves in it. With Beauty Forecast, we'll translate the information that's out there and how it affects her and her lifestyle," explains Ulli Haslacher, Founder of Pour Moi Skincare.

Nover-Baker agrees that skincare in general has been missing the cause and effect between climate and skin, which is much needed as skin functions change in different climates.

"I'm thrilled to be joining the team at Pour Moi as their Beauty Director. Their forward-thinking approach to skincare is exactly what is needed in the market right now," explains Nover-Baker. "There's no doubt that our climate is going through extreme changes, and Pour Moi is the only brand addressing how climate affects the health, vitality and aging of our skin. There are questions to be answered, and that is the role I'm taking on."

Naturally, Indie Beauty Expo was the perfect place to debut such a unique and groundbreaking blog. Founded by celebrity esthetician, Jillian Wright, and entrepreneur, Nader Naeymi-Rad, the Indie Beauty Expo was established to help the fast-growing category of indie brands connect with buyers, press and consumers.
